The diagram shows a 4-bit bus with the following sequence of events:

- The bus is initially in a high-impedance state, labeled W3.
- A read command is issued, and the data is transferred from the memory to the bus. The data is 0x00000000.
- The bus is then in a high-impedance state, labeled W3 again.

The diagram illustrates a multi-ported bus system. On the left, two masters are shown, each with a vertical stack of three components: a BYE block, an AA1 block, and another BYE block. The top BYE block of the upper master is connected to the BYE block of the lower master. A horizontal line labeled AA3 connects the AA1 block of the upper master to the AA1 block of the lower master. On the right, a single slave is represented by a vertical stack of three BYE blocks. The top BYE block of the slave is connected to the BYE block of the upper master. The middle BYE block of the slave is connected to the AA3 line. The bottom BYE block of the slave is connected to the BYE block of the lower master. A single horizontal line exits from the right side of the slave's middle BYE block.
